

CONTENTS

Introduction: . . . . .	xi
Part One: My Forebears, My Early Years, and the Italy Decade . . . . .	1
Chapter 1. Early Influences: A Look at My Roots . . . . .	3
Chapter 2. Leaving Home: College and the Navy . . . . .	15
Chapter 3. Off to Europe: The Great Adventure Begins. . . . .	26
Chapter 4. World War II Aftermath: Coping with the Human Wreckage . . . . .	33
Chapter 5. Dream to Reality: Casa Mia, the First Social Settlement Center in Italy. . . . .	47
Chapter 6. Miracle: My Life Partner Shows Up . . . . .	63
Chapter 7. A New Life in the U.S.: Academia, Marriage, and Family . . . . .	82
Chapter 8. Next Italy Adventure: An Exploratory Trip . . . . .	97
Chapter 9. Accepting the Sardinia Challenge: Postponing the PhD . . . . .	107
Chapter 10. Getting Our Feet Wet: Comprehending the Refugee Psychology . . . . .	117
Chapter 11. Project Triumphs and Personal Trials . . . . .	131
Chapter 12. HELP Earns Recognition and the Family Is Reunited . . . . .	145
Chapter 13. Ending on a High Note: Leaving Sardinia . . . . .	155
Chapter 14. Transition: U.N. Job in Rome. . . . .	167
Chapter 15. Inside Idealistic Agencies and the Family Expands . . . . .	175
Chapter 16. Wrapping Up the Refugee Work and Tracking My Norway Roots. . . . .	191
Chapter 17. “Little Moscow”: Political Research in an Italian Village . . . . .	200
Chapter 18. PhD Completed: Exploring Job Options. . . . .	212
Chapter 19. Decision: Choosing University Life in Wisconsin. . . . .	220
Photographs . . . . .	225
Part Two: The Maverick Academic and an Escapade in Brazil . . . . .	233
Chapter 20. Settling in at the University of Wisconsin . . . . .	235
Chapter 21. Assignment in Northeast Brazil: Testing Waters for International Development Project . . . . .	246
Chapter 22. Shocks: Professional and Personal . . . . .	256
Chapter 23. Italy Revisited: Little Moscow Update . . . . .	262

Chapter 24. Urban Challenges: I Enter the Fray. . . . .	269
Chapter 25. Passages: Family Life. . . . .	275
Chapter 26. Multiple Developments: Committing to Stay for the Long Haul . . . . .	283
Chapter 27. Countdown to Brazil: Life near the Equator . . . . .	290
Chapter 28. Espionage Accusations: My Research Turns Harrowing and Comical . . . . .	301
Chapter 29. Evil Eye: An Attack on Lisa Ends the Brazil Chapter . . . . .	315
Chapter 30. Poverty and Racism: Addressing Inner City Malaise . . . . .	323
Chapter 31. Portents for the Future: New Consciousness, New Land . . . . .	328
Chapter 32. Urban Work Peaks: Pioneering Community Initiatives. . . . .	338
Chapter 33. Family on the Move: Expanding Horizons and Saying Goodbye. . . . .	349
Chapter 34. End of a Cycle: After an Exciting Run . . . . .	359
Photographs . . . . .	369

Part Three: Alternative Future Scenarios Beckon:

An Ecological Community . . . . .	371
Chapter 35. Lisa’s Holy Grail: The Journey to Scotland. . . . .	373
Chapter 36. The New Age Lands in Wisconsin . . . . .	387
Chapter 37. Of Mystics and the World of Transformation . . . . .	398
Chapter 38. The Alternative Thrust and Significant Family Markers . . . . .	406
Chapter 39. Major Urban Projects and the New Lure of Futures Studies. . . . .	417
Chapter 40. High Wind Funded and a Marriage in the Family . . . . .	431
Chapter 41. “The Work” Solidifies and the Community Is Born . . . . .	443
Chapter 42. New Thinking: High Wind and University Collaboration . . . . .	452
Chapter 43. Personality Differences Necessitate a Community Process . . . . .	459
Chapter 44. Widening Visibility and Looming Problems. . . . .	467
Chapter 45. Eric and Steve: Freedoms, Fears, and Safe Landings after College . . . . .	484
Chapter 46. Our Solar House and Other Land Capers . . . . .	490
Chapter 47. New Politics: Theory and Practice . . . . .	500
Chapter 48. Intellectual Explorations on Multiple Fronts . . . . .	506
Chapter 49. Obsolete Paradigms Lead to Conceptualizing an Alternative Think Tank . . . . .	512

Chapter 50. Internal Dynamics: High Wind’s “First Wave” . . . . . 524
 Chapter 51. Bold Initiatives for the High Wind Crew. . . . . 539
 Chapter 52. A Learning Adventure: The Three-Community Seminar. . . . . 546
 Chapter 53. Mood Swings: Dramatic Community Shifts. . . . . 560
 Chapter 54. Redefining Community: The “Clockmaker” Doubts His Creation . . . . . 573
 Chapter 55. Way Up, Way Down: A Radical Solution for High Wind . . . . . 582
Photographs . . . . . 597

Part Four: Conclusion of the Saga: Footprints for our Grandchildren to Ponder and Lighting a Torch for a New Kind of Future . . . . . 601

Chapter 56. Family Relationships: Endings, Beginnings, and Assorted Trials . . . . . 603
 Chapter 57. Moscow Summit: We’re Citizen Diplomats . . . . . 610
 Chapter 58. Asian Treks: Tiananmen Square, Environmental Conferences, and a University for the Future . . . . . 614
 Chapter 59. Sustainable Futures: Teaching and Action . . . . . 623
 Chapter 60. Wake-Up Call for the Learning Establishment . . . . . 629
 Chapter 61. Breaking New Ground: Creating the First Public Waldorf School in the U.S. . . . . 635
 Chapter 62. Global Learning Center: A Valiant Experiment . . . . . 645
 Chapter 63. Shooting for the Stars: Silver Springs Siren Song . . . . . 655
 Chapter 64. SpringLedge Ecovillage: A Visionary Initiative in a Difficult Environment . . . . . 670
 Chapter 65. Momentous Decisions to Sell Silver Springs and High Wind Properties . . . . . 677
 Chapter 66. Family Transitions: Some Doors Close while Others Open . . . . . 689
 Chapter 67. Footprints and Legacies: Personal and Public . . . . . 697
 Chapter 68. Summing Up: Looking Back on the Big Adventure. . . . . 710
Photographs . . . . . 725

Index . . . . . 729